The humor went out of the coincidence after a police chief in Oklahoma claimed that he saw the President with a gun there during Mr. Ford's visit Tuesday and said so later in a speech.

Nelson Beckett, chief of police of the Oklahoma City suburb of Warr Acres, said he saw Ford transfer a pistol from a pocket of his coat as he got into an auto.

The White House spokes man quickly said, no, that was Keiser that Beckett saw and said he was certain the President carries no weapon and never has.

He quoted Keiser and other Secret Service agents as denying the charge emphatically.

If it wasn't Keiser, the spokesman said, Beckett pos-

The Decline in Housing

One of the keystones of a healthy economy is adequate housing. By and large Canada kept up quite well in the post war baby boom, and later when those babies matured and began searching out their own homes. In order to meet Canada's minimum housing needs to the end of 1974, studies indicated 200,000 new units per year were required for the period 1970-74. At the end of 1972 675,000 housing starts had been made in all parts of the country, roughly two thirds of the goal.

Meanwhile, a number of independent factors were reducing building impetus in the private sector. Changes in the 1969 federal tax laws ended tax write offs on apartment investment, reducing rental accommodation. Then inflation set in. The average family income of purchasers of National Housing Act financed houses in 1971 was $12,000, at a time when the average national income was in the $8,000 bracket. Three years later families making $19,000 per annum received assistance under the federal Assistance To Home Ownership program until its funds were exhausted last month.

But the federal government has only allocated $50 million towards rental housing across the country this year. That means only 200 units for British Columbia, according to the B.C. branch of the Housing and Urban Development Association. And HUDAC predicts a 9,000 drop in B.C. housing starts this year to 28,000. New rental accommodation in the province is "practically zero" a HUDAC spokesman said.

The provincial government's housing management commission has about 1,000 units in the planning or construction stages although Housing Minister Lorne Nicolson says 8,199 units on the drawing boards "could suffer setbacks." Nor has the government's eight per cent rental increase ceiling given private investors incentive to build rental accommodation.

In the short term, considering high interest rates and lack of incentives, Canadians will probably see more government subsidized housing if the crisis is to be alleviated. But even in a mixed economy such as Canada's, the construction sector-a $1.9 billion industry in B.C. last year-should be encouraged through incentives and reasonable building codes to build more housing units. There should also be more research on building techniques and materials. Canadian architect Moshie Safdie's Habitat sits forlornly on the banks of the St. Lawrence in Montreal, a memorial to new ideas in building. Meanwhile, low cost adoptions of Habitat are mushrooming in Puerto Rico and Israel. In Canada we put up the same old ticky-tacky subdivisions in decreasing numbers at increased cost. Without concerted action between all government levels and the construction industry, a roof over one's head will not be taken for granted in the near future.

What the UN now has done is to tell Israel, by a massive majority, that the Palestinians do exist and must be dealt with. In the process, however, the world organization may have upset the balance of bargaining power. And Israel, to compensate, is hardening its stance.

There remains a possibility that the UN invitation will have the desired effect on the PLO. Prior to the vote, we spread in UN corridors that PLO leaders, if invited to the UN, would announce a willingness to make peace with Israel ; that, in effect, they would agree to partition and coexistence.

Satisfaction

The public stance of the PLO advance party on this point has been equivocal. Nabil Shaath, their spokesman, has all but said that partition of Palestine and creation of a Palestinian republic would simply be the first step, with struggle — not peaceful coexistence — to follow.

This is what Israel has always predicted would be the result. But the UN majority is gambling that the Palestinians do not really mean it; that they say it to pacify their own extremists and doning a quarter-century goal.

Given an opportunity for governmental responsibility in a nation-state of their own, they would in fact be sa tisfied, whatever they may say or believe now, the UN majority insists.

penitentiary to witness the hanging of three felons, two of whom were black. The white man was hanged first, which prompted my colleague to note in his article that in Maryland, even on the gallows, the white man went first.

The editor excused this observation, of course, on a number of journalistically justifiable grounds, but I have been reminded of it again by the uproar over the Nixon pardon and the contention that President Ford has betrayed the principle of "equal justice under law." In Maryland at that time it was so universally understood that white men went first, law or no law, that it was considered childishly flippant to burden a routine hanging story with such incidental sociological data.

By the same token, one assumes that most Americans today are so thorough-ly aware of the double standard at law that they would scarcely lift an ear at news that it had been applied in the case of a former president.

Much of the complaining about a betrayal of "equal justice under law" can probably be dismissed as political cant whose purpose is to undermine Ford's high standing in the popularity polls. As political baloney it is probably tolerable if we keep in mind that it comes from people uniquely positioned to be ex-cused from the harsher rigors of the law in matters ranging from drunken driving and assaulting policemen up-ward through the bloodless felonies.

fall of teachers asking our statesmen how they can go on teaching the young about equal justice under law. Such teaching is like encouraging belief in Santa Claus and has no place in the educational system, at least after the sec-ond or third grade.

There can scarcely be a sensible adult alive who does not instinctively know that the law will be his support or his enemy in proportion to the strength of his position in the community, which is to say in proportion to his wealth or

If you are stopped by the cops for weaving boozily through late-night traffic, you will be far wiser to be a politician in a large new car than an unemployed hod carrier in a 1950 Chevrolet with one fender missing, and if teachers are teaching anything else after the third grade they ought to be sent back to teachers' college. sent back to teachers' college.

None of this is to say that the ideal of equal justice is not occasionally realized. It is, sometimes, but a person would be foolish to count on it. Doubtless a thorough culling of the annals of crime would turn up the name of one or two rich men who have been hanced. two rich men who have been hanged, but no names come immediately to tinctively a poor black man's punishment that the Supreme Court recently condemned it on the ground that it constituted too flagrant an exercise of in-equality under the law. The enduring pressures for its restoration suggest, however, that strong public appetite for unequal justice under law still thrives despite the outery against seeing the same great principle applied to.

It is doubtful that Americans really want equal justice under law, that the white majority really wants to be subjected to the same code of policing, trial and sentencing that applies to the black minority, or that well-to-do executives behind the wheel with too many proteins really want to be put in juil martinis really want to be put in jail with beery hod carriers instead of being taken home and put to bed, or that rich men who might "make a mistake," as men who might make a mistake, as Nixon has made, really want to be caged at Atlanta with uncouth youngsters from the streets whose mis-takes are made with burglar tools and hand guns instead of tax forms and Law reflects a nation's consensus about how society ought to be or ganized, and in its present state in the U.S. it reflects a contempt wit ha justice that grants special dispensation for money and power. Instinctively, we all recognize this and govern our actions accordingly. If we know the rules of the game and subscribe to them, what is it but hypoerisy to complain because they are applied among presidents?

clear and alert."

The trick is to learn how to do it. Mystery shrouds the process. But for a price, TM has an army of teachers who'll show the way.

The going rate for an individual course is $125. But for corporations who want to give executives a more extensive course, the price is $600. The full course, includes eight personal sessions and two days with a group at a hotel for "increased rest" and "further instruction."

"It's something that can't be learned out of a book, but must be taught by initiation," said Rick Polk, 54, chairman of an Elizabeth, N.J., electronic packaging firm.

Polk, who spent six months in Europe under the tutelage of Maharishi to qualify as a teacher, said the deep rest of TM is induced by a sound, and every individual has his own signal. TM teachers, Polk said, "are trained to pick a sound atuned to each individual's nervous system." Every hervous system is different and therefore every sound is different.

Polk and other's claim "every nickel that is made is turned back to spreading TM in the world. We think the world needs it."

world needs it."

James E. Sinclair, 32, a Wall Street broker, began practicing TM nearly four years ago. "At first I was skeptical, but not any more." he said. "The type of business I'm in is charged emotionally and it seems the rest TM provides one with is a great way to relieve the pressures of day-to-day activity."

U.S. Fuel Switches Eyed

WASHINGTON (WP)—The Federal Energy Administration plans to urge that President Ford seek legislation telling industry what kinds of fuel it can burn for heating, cooling and lighting.

The FEA will suggest that the White House order factories, power plants and large buildings to switch from oil and natural gas to coal, nuclear energy and electric heat.

A draft of the report has been circulated to Federal agencies dealing with energy.

A final, revised report is to be delivered to the White House Nov. 7, but a copy of the draft has been obtained by The Washington Post.

Even as it suggests manda-tory conservation as a way of dealing with the fuels crisis, the FEA is expected to suggest that the United States step up its efforts to produce oil and gas by leasing 10 mil-lion acres of offshore land for exploration every year.

The FEA will suggest res tricting offshore drilling to the Pacific Ocean and the Gulf of Mexico, but leaves the White House the option of moving into the Atlantic Ocean and the Gulf of Alaska as well.

While the FEA makes the point in the report that it is making no insistent recommendations for an energy policy, it is clearly down on the side of conservation of energy

Victoria Cougars have reason to be happier than ever with Lorry Gloeckner's decision to return to the Western Canada Hockey League team.

The 18-year-old defenceman made a tide-turning play Sunday at Memorial Arena to help the Cougars defeat Regina Pats 4-3 and protect Victoria's firstplace hold in the Western Division.

Gloeckner left the team be fore the season opened in order to look after "some personal matters." Two weeks ago he came back as suddenly as he left. Coach Pat Ginnell is de-

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto linebacker Sam Cvijanovich picked off a pass by Hamilton quarterback Don Jonas on Sunday afternoon and pushed the Tiger-Cats to the brink of playoff elimination.

Cvijanovich, who coached a high school football team in California last fall, stopped a down that clinched a 19-11 win

The win moved the Argos into the third and final EGC playoff spot, one point in front of Hamilton. The Tiger-Cats must beat Toronto in their final league game at Hamilton next Sunday.

Toronto had a slim 12-11 lead in the fourth quarter when Jonas led the Tiger-Cats on a methodical march that put the ball on the Toronto 28, in field goal range for Hamil-ton kicker Ian Sunter.

It was at that point that Cvijanovich grabbed a Jonas pass apparently intended for either Bob Richardson and

A Comfort for Losers: Money Isn't Everything

the inevitability of my winning a million dollars in the next olympic Lottery has elicited a delightful letter from a James Bay woman of 69 years of age who says no, she's going to win it, but she's darned if she knows what she's going to do with it.

"Until I really thought about it I always felt that a million dollars or even half that figure would be the answer to everything," she writes in part. "Now I really wonder. There's no place I want to go, having been to most places. There's no place I want to go, having been to most places. There are no possessions I really covet since I've nearly everything to make life comfortable. I suppose I could give it to my friends, but, then, they might go away to Bermuda or Tahiti and not be my friends any more. The more I think about it, in fact, the more I am convinced that it would just be a nulsance."

She doesn't think much, either, of my plan to sail on and on aboard tramp freighters until the money runs out.

"You idealize it dreadfully," she notes, not without some accuracy. "Tramp freighters, too, run into heavy seas or go down with all hands or you have to have your appendix out between ports with only a second mate armed with a carving length and a measuremy table for the operation."

It can't say that such sentiments have entirely calmed the loping greed that I share with most of the rest of the man race, but the dear girl has a point that, if nothing e, should compensate for the let-down of every loser.

I know — let's see, now — yes, I know exactly seven cerable millionaires, two of them self-made in the Horatio ter tradition. I think I can say without fear of contradiction to the property of the most miserable men of my aquaintance. Taken on a purely statistical basis they have had more marital troubles, more ruined children, more bad health, more worries, more mental insecurity than any other seven

You or I may think that all we need is a large lump of cash to buy some kind of happiness, but the undeniable fact is that the acquisition of great wealth seems to automatically destroy the capacity for pleasure in anything other than acquiring more wealth.

I remember some years ago in Acapulco when my wife and I were ensconseed in a flea-bag hotel and having the time and I were ensourced in a flea-bag hotel and having the time of our lives on a bare-bones budget (we'd discovered that we'd could have Acapulco almost to ourselves by spending the mornings on The Afternoon Beach and the afternoons on The Morning Beach) we were invited to dinner on a Vancouver yacht that was moored in the bay.

The millionaire owner, now deceased from massive peptic ulcers, was simply having no fun-at all. He was never out of range of a phone that linked him with his office back home and the latest news from the stock market. He had a phobia against native food, drink and hydiene, and never went

The proviso would be that he would have a love-affair in each country, before moving to the next, a Caspar Milquetoast notion which I was prouder of then that I am now. He would return, I was sure, with a deep insight into foreign climes, a life-time of happy memories and, God knows, a bottomless store of conversation.

He went, instead, to a millionaire's enclave in Palm Springs for a life shared with people as narrow, as boring and as rich as himself.

You are thinking, of course, that these were people long accustomed to wealth and so they were, but a year or two ago a British Sunday newspaper looked into the long history of big winners in the Irish Sweepstakes, almost all of them relatively coors and found that the results were even more relatively poor, and found that the results were even more unnerving.

If it hadn't been so tragic the self-inflicted mayhem would have been genuinely comical. The paper found that contented marriages and contented homes were torn apart. There was a long death list, mainly composed of men who had bought expensive, high-powered cars with their winnings and had gone to their doom. A surprising number had turned to alcohol or drugs and as many more had ended up flat broke through crazy investments. Less than one in 10, as J recall the figures, had found anything that could be called

Mickey Cohen says he found California by force, if neces-

"It was a definite thing, and it was a definite thing she was coming back to San 'Francis-co," he said.

"We even had a destination set up in San Francisco. There was a definite arrangement to get her back.'

The ex-convict said that when his contacts in Cleveland "told me she might have to be brought back by force, I wanted her parents to understand that. That could have led to a shootout or a re-kid-

Cohen, 61, said last week that he had discovered the whereabouts of the fugitive heiress and her Symbionese Liberation Army companions, William and Emily During the weekend he said it was Cleveland.

"It won't make any dif-ference, because they're not in Cleveland any more," he said, adding he sent world to help send anyone to prison.

There was no timetable to return her to San Francisco, Cohen said.

"It never got to that point," he said Sunday. "It just blew right up in my face. When Catherine Heart sold me they didn't have it arranged that Patty would not have to go to prison when she got back, I backed out.

"I got hot that they didn't tell me that from the begin-ning," he said.

Cleveland, where Cohen lived as a youth, is also the home of Delano Defreeze, brother of Donald Defreeze, leader of the SLA band that kidnapped Miss Hearst.

"My only interest was bringing back the little lady to her mother and father." Cohen said. "... I didn't want to have anything to do with sending somebody to the joint, so I put out the word for them to clear out of Charaland."

to clear out of Cleveland.' The FBI has refused to say how seriously it takes Cohen's information. "I don't tell the FBI nothing," Cohen said.

SURREY (CP) — An 11-year-old-boy has taken a pic-ture of what he is convinced is an unidentified flying ob

"It just went round and round in a circle, up and down and then took off super fast in the sky," David Knut sen said.

He saw the object Oct. 15 after he noticed two RCMP officers standing in a parking lot, pointing in the sky.

The picture was the first on a 20-picture roll and his father, wouldn't let him develop it until the other 19 pictures had been taken. David received the negatives Friday.

ceived the negatives Friday.

The picture shows a circu-lar almost-black object with a sharp but narrow glow around its exterior. David said there were no distinguishable mark-ings on the object which he estimates was about 400 feet about three seconds, he added. sergeant Arnold McPherson, of the RCMP said Saturday he didn't know the names of the officers David said he saw. No UFO reports were filed with the police station and no one had mentioned any sightings, he said.

David said he had been reading, about UFOs but claimed the sighting was autention.

plane, I know that," he said.

A blazing white UFO, described as roaring like a jet aircraft was reported by an RCMP officer in Turner Valley, Alta., just two days be-fore David took his picture.

Decide Now on Shrub Placing

we are aware that some garden work has been put off. The most important is the planting of leaf-losing (deciduous) shrubs which have been ordered from local nurseries.

Normally these plants are advanced enough by the mid-dle of October to be lifted from the nursery rows ready for delivery or pick up by the end of the month. This year however, the month of spring warmth lost between April and May delayed growth on nearly all de-ciduous shrubs so that now they are only just approaching the leaf falling stage. Don't blame the nurseryman, there's not much he can do short of pulling off the leaves to create a false dormancy.

on the receiving end should be to prepare for the work of planting the moment the plants are available.

plants are available.

On paper write down the exact place where you intend putting each plant. Then go into the garden to verify your choice of places and mark each with a stake complete with a plant name.

each with a stake complete with a plant name.
You prepare the planting holes too if you are familiar with the root habits of the plants you have on order. If not, you can still work over the soil and have a load of compost ready to use, and a pail or wheelbarrow of thoroughly dampened peatmoss, providing the plants will tolerate peatmoss.
Not every shrub you put in will need or indeed endure peatmoss, but it is necessary

If humus is lacking in the soil, use either partially de-composed compost material, fallen leaves, or, wet peat-moss on the basis of one shov-

To get this sundried material completely moistened you must put it into a tub, pail or wheelbarrow and mix it with a fork stirring the water and peat together until no free a fork stirring the water and peat together until no free water is seen. Do this job a day or two before you plant, for the longer it soaks after mixing, the more manageable it will be.

Without soaking, peat moss in the soil will be as dry at the end of winter as it is now in the bag. It will take moisture from the plant's roots and from the soil yet never become dampened. Plants

While you wait for your plants, whether they are shrubs or trees, you can still be shifting them around — mentally — picturing them in

Profit Surge Denied

NEW YORK (AP) — First National City Bank of New York says 'unusually large third-quarter corporate earnings were "not the result of a surge in petroleum profits."

Citibank's economists said Sunday in a preliminary analysis of after-tax profits of 853 corporations that the increases over the earnings reported in the third quarter a year ago "almost entirely reflected inflated dollar volume, not higher profit margins," and were not distributed evenly over the 30 industry groups NEW YORK (AP) - First ly over the 30 industry groups studied.

The 13 petroleum firms studied had a total profit of $1.670 billion and accounted for almost 18 per cent of the total profit of $9.296 billion reported by all the firms.

However, the petroleum industry had an average earnings increase of 45 per cent, lower than eight other industry groups.

By, group, the industries leading the list of gainers were: Common carrier trucking, up 208, per cent from the third quarter of 1973; iron and steel, up 175 per cent; other transportations, up 152 per cent; non-ferrous metals, up 105 per cent; paper, up 67 per cent, and chemicals, up 66 per cent.

GROUPS DOWN

Five industry groups earned less in the third quarter of 1974 than they did a year earlier: Aerospace, down 21 per cent; electrical equipment and electronics, down 11 per cent; instruments and photo goods, down eight per cent; other manufacturing, down six per cent, and textiles, down five per cent.

In the first half of 1974 there mas an average 23-per-cent gain in profits amont the com-panies studied, but there was an average increase of 28 per-cent over the third quarter of Citibank said petroleum profits actually went down to 45 per cent from 55 per cent for the same 13 companies in the first half.

The economists for the bank said profit margins averaged only 6.3 cents per sales dollar for all manufacturing firms in the survey during the third quarter, which was only a slight boost from 6.2 cents a year earlier.

They predicted that corporate earnings probably will decline substantially in 1975.

"You idealize it dreadfully," she notes, not without some accuracy. "Tramp freighters, too, run into heavy seas or go down with all hands or you have to have your appendix out between ports with only a second mate armed with a carving knife and a messroom table for the operation."

I can't say that such sentiments have entirely calmed the galloping greed that I share with most of the rest of the human race, but the dear girl has a point that, if nothing else, should compensate for the let-down of every loser.

I'know — let's see, now — yes, I know exactly seven certifiable millionaires, two of them self-made in the Horatio Alger tradition. The millionaire owner, now deceased from massive perticuleers, was simply having no fun at all. He was never out of range of a phone that linked him with his office back home and the latest news from the stock market. He had a phobia against native food, drink and hygiene and never went ashore. He was so convinced that the bay was swarming with asnore, he was so convinced that the bay was swarming with sharks that he never swam. He just sat there, drinking himself into a nightly insensibility. The weight of his incredible worth was a burden that could be measured, it seemed to us, in the same tonnage as the anchor that kept his floating

Kissinger's Men Fear Red Lisbon

LISBON (WP) - Secretary of State Henry. Kissinger, apparently skeptical of U.S. embassy reports from here minimizing the peril of a communist takeover in Portugal, sent high-level intelligence and diplomatic experts to this Iberian country recently to make independent evaluations.

The sources said that Kissinger and others in Washington were obsessed with the fear that Portugal will be the first country to go Communist in what was called "a southera Europe domino theory." Also involving Spain, Italy and Greece this fear ap-parently has been fed by pessimistic intelligence assessments press reports stressing the power of the left in Portugal, and the anxieties of multi-national companies with interest in Portugal and its no health insurance.

"All hospital costs come out of his own pocket. Someone neglected to take out insurance," former White House press secretary Ron Ziegler said Sunday.

Nixon spent 11 days in Long Beach Memorial Hospital before he was discharged Oct. 4 the end of this week. If surgery is needed as appears increasingly likely the stay conducted and run to weeks.

Nixon's financial advisers have already indicated that his money problems are almost certain to force him to sell one of his homes, probably the estate at Key Biscayne, Fla.

It's Like Being a Prisoner—Margaret

TORONTO (UPI) said Sunday she sought out psychiatric care because she was reaching a "crisis stage" both in terms of her personal identity and her public role as the prime minister's wife.

"I knew that . . . part of the thing which led to my seeking psychiatric help was that I felt myself trapped in a role that I wasn't feeling myself fulfilled in," the 26-year-old wife of Pierre Trudeau said in a lengthy TV

While she had felt personally prepared for marriage, she found herself "completely unprepared" for the curiosity, demands and retrictions of her role as wife of the prime

'It was a total catastrophe in terms of my identity," Margaret said as she described moving into the official residence at 24 Sus-sex drive in Ottawa, following her marriage to Trudeau, now 55, when she was only 23. "We never had servants at home and 1
